But once inside, will they discover there's much more to the Clarksville City Zoo than they could ever have guessed?

With monstrous sasquatches freely attacking the denizens of the zoo and the evil Shadowist at large, the fate of the world is at stake. Many books come with counseling manuals. -Taken from the section on A Family DiscussionWe don't only see things with our eyes, but also with our attitude.Well Let's First Start With a Story to Explain the Meaning of Attitude: Situations can be seen in different ways according to our attitude.When I was a little girl, I would visit the beach every year. One time, my dad told me a story that is very relevant to attitudes.There was a fisherman whose house faced the ocean. One day he took his boat and went fishing. Suddenly, the waves flipped the boat. The fisherman desperately called out for help. Some people heard him, and they came and saved his life. After they saved him, he went home and asked a friend if he could help him block the window that looked out at the ocean. Every time he looked through that window, he remembered the awful danger that he had faced. His friend looked at him and said you should ask me to make this window wider, because every time you look at the ocean you will remember the great miracle and rejoice. Here, there were two people and each one looked at this situation with a different attitude
