Collage technically started once paper was made in China about 200BC. The gluing of paper for decorative purposes began in Japan around the 10th century. Other materials such as gold leaf and gemstones were added for religious purposes during the 15th-16th centuries. Gluing for the purposes of memorabilia began in albums during the 18th century. As an art form, the term collage was coined by Pablo Picasso and the Cubists painters with the emergence of modernism in the early 1900's. Wood based collage began around 1930 and decoupage is a decorative craft commenced as early as 1700. Photo-montage began in 1956 and the digital collages since 1992. Collage is an art form and technique, incorporating the use of pre-existing materials or objects attached as part of a two-dimensional surface. Despite occasional usage by earlier artists and wide informal use in popular art, collage is closely associated with 20th-century art, in which it has often served as a correlation with the pace and discontinuity of the modern world.

DIVCodes are a fact of life for do-it-yourselfers, but getting good information on codes can be a nightmare. Anyone who has ever opened a code book (or even a code interpretation book) looking for the answer to a building, wiring or plumbing question has found the same thing: a lot of arcane, technical words and cross-referencing, pages of meaningless charts, but no information that make sense. Codes for Homeowners combines decades of experience by author and IRC-certified home inspector Bruce Barker with Creative Publishing's famous studio photography, and the result is the first truly clear and easy to use codes reference book for homeowners and tradesmen alike. Current with 2009 International Residential Code (IRC).
