With a dropshipping model, there is no need to purchase a product without you already having made the sale, and having been paid by your customer. Devoid of substantial up-front inventory investments, it is very possible to begin a thriving dropshipping business without minimal financial backup. When you dropship, you have no worries about *Paying for, or managing a warehouse *Packing and shipping your customers' orders *Tracking the inventory for accounting purposes *Handling inbound shipments or any returns, physically *Repeatedly ordering products and maintaining stock levels *Needing a storage place to hold physical products Low Overheads Because there is no reason to deal with purchasing any inventory or the management of a warehouse, your overheads and businesses expenses can be quite small. Many successful dropshipping companies are run from home offices with a single computer for less than $100 per month. As your business grows, it's likely these expenses will increase, but nonetheless, they will still be low when compared to traditional brick-and-mortar companies. Dropshipping businesses can be run from almost anywhere as long as you have an internet connection. This is vital to allow communication with your suppliers and your customers, both quickly and efficiently. So, if your supplier stocks a certain product, you can list it for sale in your online store, or on the platform you use, at no additional cost. With conventional business types, if you have orders for three times as much business, it is likely you'll need to perform three times as much work. With the leveraging of dropshipping suppliers, the majority of the work in processing additional orders is borne by your suppliers. This allows you to expand your business with fewer growing pains. Sales growth always brings some extra work. In most cases, this is primarily related to customer service. What is Dropshipping? Drop shipping simply refers to a retail fulfillment model where you do not stock the products you are selling. Instead of physically stocking the products you want to sell, you just display the items online (on your website mostly). Once a buyer places an order, you forward the order to the vendor who then acts as a third party and fulfills the orders on your behalf. From the above explanation, it is clear that the dropshipping business model usually depends of the participation of three parties namely:

Supplier The first in the chain is the dropshipping supplier who fulfills the orders placed by a customer. For instance, if you are selling shirts by H&M and a customer places an order for a shirt, you will send the order details to H&M and it, being the supplier, will fulfill the order. Retailer The retailer is the person/organization that acts as an intermediary who takes orders from the customer and forwards them to the supplier who then fulfills them. This order taking process can be through a website or a social media account.

Customer The customer is the person who places the order through the website or social media account. Now that you know the parties involved in the dropshipping business model, let us examine a tad bit more on how the dropshipping model works. Today's savvy e-commerce business owner knows how to compete. In years past a business, shopped for the products they wanted to resell. They then purchased the items and stored them while they searched for an end user or consumer. Once the product was sold, they shipped the item to their customer and hopefully made a profit. This method is costly. Besides the price of the item, the seller pays shipping from the manufacturer (or distributor) to his location. He then stores the item, taking up resources and space until he resells the merchandise. He invests time and effort into marketing the item and either he or the end user pays shipping (again) to their location. All of these steps have to be factored into the price of the item to the end user. The customer will decide if the end price of the item is a bargain and is competitive. As the shipper, if the item is lost or damaged in shipping the expense of filing tracking and claims falls on him as well. Drop Shipping is a proven way of reducing or eliminating many of these expenses, thus making the end price lower for the consumer and more profitable for the seller. With drop shipping, a seller or retailer does not purchase the item and store it for resell, but rather sells the merchandise and ships it directly from the manufacturer to the consumer. The seller does not have to store the item or pay shipping from the manufacture to his location. He does not have to handle the item himself. This reduces chance of loss or damage and speeds up the process considerably! He needs less start-up money (storage rental can be very costly and a product on hand that moves slower than anticipated can create a cash flow problem right out of the gate) and can invest more time and money on his sales. He also does not have to reship the item and there is only one shipping expense to absorb, lowering the price of the item and making it of more value and profit for all concerned. If there is loss or damage in shipping, it falls on the manufacturer (or distributor) to provide the documents and file any claims with the shipping company involved. Okay, so all of this
