"Services Marketing is well known for its authoritative presentation and strong instructor support. The new 6th edition continues to deliver on this promise. Contemporary Services Marketing concepts and techniques are presented in an Australian and Asia-Pacific context. In this edition, the very latest ideas in the subject are brought to life with new and updated case studies covering the competitive world of services marketing. New design features and a greater focus on Learning Objectives in each chapter make this an even better guide to Services Marketing for students. The strategic marketing framework gives instructors maximum flexibility in teaching. Suits undergraduate and graduate-level courses in Services Marketing."

"Marketing Management: A Strategic Decision-Making Approach 6th Edition" concentrates on strategic decision making. This approach sets Mullins apart from other texts which place greater emphasis on description of marketing phenomena rather than on the strategic and tactical marketing decisions that managers and entrepreneurs must make each and every day. The author team's rich entrepreneurial, marketing management, and consulting experience spans a broad variety of manufacturing, service, software, and distribution industries provides an abundance of real-world, global perspectives.

Appropriate for upper-level college and university courses in international and global marketing. The Second Canadian Edition addresses the need to understand the global marketplace from a Canadian perspective, without being ethnocentric. It puts into practice the principal tenet of the global marketer: benefit from the similarities across diverse markets, but heed the differences. Bringing a managerial orientation to global marketing, the book covers small and large companies alike, and takes an analytical approach when necessary. Topical Canadian research findings are included to illustrate current management practice and behaviour.

This collection of articles focuses on the particular challenges and issues of international marketing. How can a company break into a new foreign market? What pricing structures should be in operation for a global product? How does one manage a multilingual advertising campaign? The Reader combines previously published articles with new papers commissioned to update classic research in the field. With an international set of contributors and a range of international examples, the book offers a selection of critical studies that analyse each part of the marketing function. It then concludes by reflecting on the creation of the EU, of NAFTA and the unpredictable Westernization of emerging markets of Central and Eastern Europe, showing how the international marketing expert must be able to respond to the rapidly changing global environment.

This book has been written for experienced managers and students in postgraduate programs, such as MBA or specialized Masters programs. In a systematic yet concise manner, it addresses all major issues companies face when conducting business across national and cultural boundaries, including assessing and selecting the most promising overseas markets, evaluating market entry alternatives, examining the forces that drive adaptation versus standardization of the marketing mix. It looks at the various global marketing challenges from a strategic perspective and also addresses topics not usually found in international marketing texts, such as aligning marketing strategies with global organizational structures, managing the relationship between national subsidiaries, regional headquarters and global headquarters, as well as corporate social responsibility challenges, and pertinent future trends that are likely to affect global business.

Based on the recognition of diversity in world markets and on local consumer knowledge and marketing practices, this work offers an approach to global marketing. It emphasizes comparisons of global and local consumption.

'Global Marketing Management' provides comprehensive coverage of the issues which define marketing in the world today, equipping students with some of the most current knowledge and practical skills to help them make key management decisions in the dynamic and challenging global trade environment.
