We human beings are creatures of habit. We devote a substantial portion of our time, energy and effort (about 40%) to activities we do automatically, without thinking. Habits shape and determine the course of our lives for better or for worse. Do you have any bad habits? Sure. We all do. What if, instead of suffering because of a bad habit you devote the energy of that habit routine toward achieving your greatest desire? Just think of the possibilities. Think how much faster you'd go and how much farther. Think of all the things you could accomplish. The difference between the super-successful, the high achievers, and all the rest is not looks or talent, intelligence or education, status or wealth; these trappings of success are the byproduct of habits - high performance habits. The super-successful don't possess a magical ingredient or leverage a mysterious advantage you lack. The super-successful, all high achievers, employ high performance habits deliberately and consistently to produce extraordinary results. High performance habits are levers allowing ordinary people to soar. You can be a high achiever too. Discover how in High Performance Habits, Making Success a Habit. Take a leap of faith. You are guaranteed to succeed!
