Please note that the content of this book primarily consists of articles available from Wikipedia or other free sources online. Pages: 56. Chapters: Singaporean Mahjong scoring rules, Three player mahjong, Japanese Mahjong yaku, Guobiao Majiang, Japanese Mahjong scoring rules, Hong Kong Mahjong scoring rules, Mahjong tiles, Scoring in Mahjong, Mahjong solitaire, Mahjong culture, American mahjong, Joseph Park Babcock, Ponjan, Games played with Mahjong equipment. Excerpt: Mahjong (simplified Chinese: traditional Chinese: pinyin: ma jiang), sometimes spelled Mah Jongg, is a game that originated in China, commonly played by four players (with some three-player variations found in Korea and Japan). The four player table version should not be confused with the popular Western single player (tile matching) computer game (Mahjong solitaire), which is a recent invention and completely different from the table game. Similar to the Western card game rummy, mahjong is a game of skill, strategy and calculation and involves a certain degree of chance. In Asia, mahjong is also popularly played as a gambling game (though it may just as easily be played recreationally). The game is played with a set of 136 tiles based on Chinese characters and symbols, although some regional variations use a different number of tiles. In most variations, each player begins by receiving thirteen tiles. In turn players draw and discard tiles until they complete a legal hand using the fourteenth drawn tile to form four groups (melds) and a pair (head). There are fairly standard rules about how a piece is drawn, stolen from another player (melded), the use of basic (numbered tiles) and honours (winds and dragons), the kinds of melds, and the order of dealing and play. However there are many regional variations in the rules; in addition, the scoring system, the minimum hand necessary to win varies significantly based on the local rules being used. The game was called (pinyin: ma que), ...

"I thoroughly enjoyed this book. Whether used as a reference or a beautiful keepsake, it's a very worthy addition to the world of Mah Jongg." —Ruth Unger, President, National Mah Jongg League This is the first book to fully capture the story of the exotic and exciting game of Mahjong or "Mah Jongg", offering an intimate look at the history of the game as well as the visual beauty of the tiles. When authors Ann Israel and Gregg Swain began playing Mahjong, they were unaware of the vintage collections that existed not only in the United States but also across the globe. Slowly, they started to collect their own sets of Mahjong and as their collections grew, so did their appreciation of the history of, and interest in, the game. Finding few references, Israel and Swain set out to create a book that chronicles the early beginnings of the game and documents Mahjong sets from the most basic, made simply of paper, to the most precious materials such as ivory and mother-of-pearl. Recognized and respected scholars and game experts have collaborated with Israel and Swain, contributing important chapters on the game's history and its pieces as well as technical information on the tiles. Lastly, great collectors from around the globe have shared their incredible sets and memories for the first time in one book for everyone to enjoy. With hundreds of beautiful new images by renowned photographer Michel Arnaud, and including historical documentation and ephemera, Mah Jongg: The Art of the Game fills the void between

Urban Legend: Extra four hands when playing Mahjong No. 452 Nathan Road, which is the Man Ho Court at the junction of Nathan Road and Zhongfang Street today, is the location of the Zhonghua Book Company. The owner's surname of Ye on the fourth floor is Vietnamese overseas Chinese. Recently, all the residents moved out. He sent his daughter to the second floor to take care of the property. His daughter was very boring. In the evening, she invited friends to play Mahjong on the second floor unit. It is rumored that on March 5, 1953, Mahjong entered a critical moment, there were still four tiles, a player Threw a West-Wind tile. another player suddenly opened the bar of West-Wind, and the bar was full of . Suddenly there were two hands on the side of the table to collect money from the other three. The four people saw that four more hands on the table. They immediately got up to grab the door and fled. The police asked four to lead the way back to the scene for investigation. The four refused, and the police were helpless. They left the four in the police report room and sent the police to the upper site for investigation. When the police officer entered the upper unit, he saw a Mahjong stand overturned to the ground, the Mahjong tiles scattered on the ground. There was nothing suspicious. When the police officer returned to the police station and wanted to make an inquiry with the four reporters, they found that the four were at a loss, but where the four had sat, they found that four Mahjong tiles scattered on the site. There were all "West-Wind" Mahjong tiles. After the incident, nearby residents claimed that they saw people playing Mahjong in the unit at midnight. All four or five people were wearing white clothes, one of them looked around the window, all of whom had no head. After the residents called the police, when the police arrived, they saw the lights in the unit light up, but no one was in the house. Apart from the residents, the delivery staff of a nearby restaurant said that every day at 9 pm, there were people in the addressing units called takeaway, usually five bowls and the first porridge. After being delivered to the unit, one person opened the door to collect the porridge to pay. The restaurant later found that the cash box storing the change added five more tiles a day. In order to track down the truth, the shop owner delivered porridge to the unit with the delivery guy. When someone opened the door to collect the porridge to pay, the shop owner forcibly made a door to enter the house and saw five headless men and women, four of whom were playing Mahjong. The shop owner and the delivery man fled to the police station. After the incident, a large number of people watched outside the building, causing severe congestion on Nathan Road. The police attempt to disperse the crowd was invalid, armoured vehicles were present to maintain order. Police officers conducted in-depth investigations and learned that the residents on the second floor had been forcibly relocated by the owner, suspecting that the incident was caused by dissatisfaction. After tracing, police found that four residents on the second floor had left Hong Kong to Indonesia earlier, but died in a traffic accident. They were taken over by the owner because did not pay rent. Another is that some people want to rebuild the whole building, but the owners on the fourth and second floors are not willing to sell the property, some people direct a strange story and force the owners to move out. A similar haunted house was attacked by Mahjong, He Donghang had happened in the middle of the road before the war. Residents saw a vacant unit, some people drank tea in the unit at night. After verification, it was confirmed that it was a nearby night tea drinking house. The light cast a shadow into the vacant unit, forming the illusion that someone was drinking tea in the unit. "Four People Die due to The Fourth West of Mahjong Taboo" In 1976, the fifteen-minute "The tale of Fantasy" premiered in "Enjoy Yourself Tonight", a unit story of "The Fourth West of Mahjong Taboo" became a collective memory of Hong Kong citizens. In the story of "The Fourth West of Mahjong Taboo", Cheng Ye, who likes playing Mahjong, meets three neighbors to play, she one wins three. At the last hand, three players hit "West" in succession, they were calling out Cheng Ye not to touch the outrageous "West". Three of them urged her not to throw "West", so as not to violate the taboo of "The Fourth West of Mahjong." Cheng Ye ignored everyone's advice, throw the fourth "West", Cheng Ye finally became a big winner. When the three Mahjong player left together they all died in a car accident. After attending the funeral of the three Mahjong friends, Cheng Ye went home with her husband and dreamed of the last hand with the three deceased Mahjong friends. After the three played "West", they said they would take Cheng Ye at 12 that night. As before, when Cheng Ye touched the "West", the three "West" Mahjong tiles on the stage became like three deceased friends, and Cheng Ye's "West" appeared on his own. Cheng Ye was awakened and asked her husband Cheng Ge stay at home to accompany her. She had already been contracted to play Mahjong, it was postponed until 12:00 in the morning. Mahjong friends said would pick her up at Cheng Ye's house. At about 12 am, the lights in Cheng's home were on and off, but nothing happened. The wall clock showed that it was past 12 in the morning. Cheng's Mahjong friend Pat came to pick her up. Cheng Ge told Cheng Ye a false alarm, gave her the money and told her to play with ease. Soon after the two left, someone patted the door. When Cheng Ge opened the door, he saw Pat standing outside the door said taht she would pick Cheng Ye to play Mahjong. Cheng Ge asked Pat what time it was, Pat said it was 12 o'clock. Cheng Ge turned on the radio. The radio just reported at 12 am. The story ends here, leaving the audience with unlimited imagination.

MaMa and BaBa play mahjong all day long. And all night long. We hear the clicking of mahjong tiles morning, noon, and night. Big sister, JieJie, and her little brother, DiDi, see their parents playing mahjong all the time. It's their favorite family tradition. With Uncle T.T. and Auntie Helen around, the house is always alive with singing and chatting, the aromas of hot tea and good food, and of course the constant sounds of a family having fun together! One day JieJie and Didi will grow up and have families of their own, and they will teach their children the game as their parents taught them. As it has done for centuries, the playing of mahjong continues to bring families together, allowing for traditions to be passed on generation after generation. Beth and Ginnie Lo are sisters (and best friends!). They had a happy Chinese American childhood in West Lafayette, Indiana, where they learned to play mahjong while sitting on their father's lap. They continue to play to this day. Ginnie, a computer science professor, wrote the story, and Beth, a ceramic arts professor, made the illustrated ceramic plates. This is their first book. Beth now plays mahjong in Missoula, Montana, with her husband, son, and Chinese cousin who lives up the valley. Ginnie plays mahjong in Eugene, Oregon, with her husband, their children, and American Mahjong, sometimes called Maahj, is an offshoot of the traditional Chinese game of Mahjong. Mahjong or Mah Jongg is a four player game which employs both skill and luck. Mahjong is always played with four players seated around a table. Tiles are shuffled, die are cast, and rituals involving the allocation of tiles and then the exchange of tiles begin. The first person to match a hand of 14 tiles and thus "call mahjong" ends the game, whereupon tiles are scored and a winner is declared.
