Demeter has rebuffed all her daughter's suitors, but she is not yet satisfied; she strives to crush Persephone's spirit. Still, when Hades pulls her into the dark realm of the underworld, Persephone longs for the world above, even if it means an eternity under her mother's thumb. With her tears and pleas for freedom ignored by pitiless Hades, Persephone must learn to satisfy her keeper in all ways, lest she suffer the consequences. And though she cannot deny that something blooms within her, something forbidden, Persephone despairs of ever feeling the sun upon her skin once more. No matter the cost, Hades intends to keep her. Excerpt from Seventeen Years in the Underworld The two of us were sitting in a large park in an Eastern city, one beautiful summer evening. As the rich afterglow of the sunset turned to twilight and then to dark, my friend began to talk about the old furtive days in the underworld. He told me how in many an American city he had stood before some house of an evening when the shades were not drawn. Within he would see the father and the mother, and the happy little children, and all the bright light of home. He would turn away abruptly and walk into the dark, trying to forget it. He could never have a home like that. Somehow there flashed upon me that night such an intimate sense of the tragic loneliness which a man can know in the underworld as I had never felt before. I am Eden Kastrati. The only direct female family member left in the Kastrati outfit. I had a choice, betray my brother or save my cousin, who is also my best friend. I made a decision with my heart, and now it haunts me every single day. Though I don't regret the choice I made, it has left me feeling outcast and empty. Some say what I did was brave. Others say I am a rat. They call me the Ice Queen, cold and detached, but it is better that way. I will never have to feel anything for anyone ever again. Alessio Valsetti, known as the playboy of the Valsetti family, thinks he can change that. He is foolish to believe he can make me feel again with his witty charm and devilishly good looks. Does he forget that his family killed mine? Does he think for one second that I would ever sleep with the enemy? Arrogant and indecent. He gives me chills in all the wrong ways. I don't want to accept his offer, no matter how desperate I am to escape. But what other choice do I have? I stay, I would either be signing my own death certificate or be married off to the highest bidder. So, do I agree to marry the devil I know, or gamble everything on the devil I don't?
