refreshing antidote to what has passed for history in our educational system and a one-volume education in itself.” —Howard Zinn A new edition of the national bestseller and American Book Award winner, with a new preface by the author Since its first publication in 1995, Lies My Teacher Told Me has become one of the most important—and successful—history books of our time. Having sold nearly two million copies, the book also won an American Book Award and the Oliver Cromwell Cox Award for Distinguished Anti-Racist Scholarship and was heralded on the front page of the New York Times. For this new edition, Loewen has added a new preface that shows how inadequate history courses in high school help produce adult Americans who think Donald Trump can solve their problems, and calls out academic historians for abandoning the concept of truth in a misguided effort to be “objective.” What started out as a survey of the twelve leading American history textbooks has ended up being what the San Francisco Chronicle calls “an extremely convincing plea for truth in education.” In Lies My Teacher Told Me, James W. Loewen brings history alive in all its complexity and ambiguity. Beginning with pre-Columbian history and ranging over characters and events as diverse as Reconstruction, Helen Keller, the first Thanksgiving, the My Lai massacre, 9/11, and the Iraq War, Loewen offers an eye-opening critique of existing textbooks, and a wonderful retelling of American history as it should—and could—be taught to American students.

"In this book journals are seen in every situation and from every angle, as if mounted on a slow turntable under a spotlight. The conclusion of most of the teachers and students using them is that they get people thinking, they help them test their own experience against the ideas of many others-- the authorities they're studying, their teachers, their fellow students ... The payoffs from using journals in classrooms are here shown to be astounding. Students learn from making mistakes and half-forming ideas. They learn to think, not by doing exercises in a faddish "critical thinking" textbook, but by working their way through real questions, with real interest and real intent"--Back cover.

a journey through the motherland. Dear Reader, We have a responsibility to the truth. "What was Africa before Slavery?" This was a question I grew up asking. I opened books, they all felt daunting. I read, understood, discussed and debated them. These books were never in our curriculum, when found they were hidden in thick textbooks that I would sit with and read for hours. I never had the luxury of variety when it came down to unfiltered African history, not many cartoons or accurate films. Those with the answers should deliver the truth, and those with the questions should dictate how it is delivered but I struggled to find digestible content on my history. I grew up on Horrible Histories, Documentary channel, films, cartoons and comics all about the history of the world, yet the 'world' I was taught began in the United Kingdom and ended in America, with the occasional contributions of Asia and the forceful support of Africa. I knew I needed to create something that told the complex stories of our ancestors but was digestible enough to educate a generation on its history. Something to tell the tales without watering them down. Something that will create history whilst telling it. Sit with me as I take my future child through their history before they and you make your own. - Nego True
