The dawn of the twenty-first century is an opportune time for the people of the Caribbean to take stock of the entire experience of the past forty years since the ending of direct colonialism. The authors believe it is now time to chart our future by carefully learning the lessons of the recent past. This interdisciplinary collection is the first to cross traditionally restrictive disciplinary barriers to address the tough questions that face the Caribbean today. What went wrong with the nationalist project? What, if any, are the realistic options for a more prosperous Caribbean? What are to be the roles of race, gender and class in a more global, less national world? Meeks and Lindahl include thought-provoking articles from twenty-one respected thinkers in diverse fields of study. The groundbreaking articles include critiques of existing bodies of thought, reformulations of general theoretical approaches, policy-oriented alternatives for future development, and more. This book is a must for statesmen, academics and students of political theory, social theory, Caribbean studies, comparative gender studies, post-colonial studies, Marxism and Caribbean history and anyone interested Like other organizations across the world, military establishments apply the concept of entrepreneurship to day-to-day activities. However, literature on the topic runs thin, creating a gap in the research on this area of military involvement in entrepreneurship. These studies focus heavily on three topics: ex-military officers in entrepreneurship, entrepreneurial-minded individuals still in the military, and military spouses as successful entrepreneurs. It is essential that researchers interrogate these three areas across different locational contexts for a clear representation and understanding of the many forms of military entrepreneurship. This research focuses on outcomes, the entrepreneural process, economic activities, and ontological directions. Military entrepreneurship and Innovation builds on existing theoretical and empiric en œuvre. Pays sahélien, le Burkina Faso a été choisi comme participant au PIF grâce à son potentiel substantiel de séquestration de carbone des forêts sèches au niveau mondial et à son expérience importante dans la gestion participative des ressources naturelles. Les superficies forestières estimées à 13 305 238 ha subissent une dégradation et une déforestation accélérées sous la double pression humaine et naturelle. La surexploitation et la gestion non durable des forêts amplifiées par l'expansion agricole et le boom minier sont les principaux moteurs de cette dégradation et déforestation. À travers le PIF, le Burkina Faso a élaboré et adopté son R-PP en 2012. Le processus REDD+ bénéficie de politiques et stratégies existantes qui lui sont favorables, mais l'analyse de leur performance à réduire ou favoriser la dégradation et la déforestation des ressources forestières révèle que certaines politiques ont été guidées par une logique de maximisation des retombées socio-économiques plus que de protection de l'environnement. L'élaboration de la stratégie REDD+, sa mise en œuvre et sa réussite doivent se nourrir d'une évaluation, en termes d'efficience, d'efficacité et d'équité, des éléments clés que sont : le contexte institutionnel et de gouvernance, la coordination des actions, la participation des acteurs, les mécanismes de MNV, de partage des revenus. Pour ce faire, la mise en œuvre des deux projets du PIF constitue un processus d'apprentissage et un cadre de réflexion pour la REDD+.
