

Paying For College Without Going Broke 2013 Edition College Admissions Guides

Lists more than 20,000 internship possibilities for high school, college, and graduate students as well as for those interested in a new career. This book assesses the current plight and future prospects of the four-year liberal arts college and its university counterpart, the college of arts and sciences. The author describes what these colleges must do to survive, not in terms of enrollments and finances, but as distinctive, purposeful institutions of higher education. --Publisher description.

Profiles over two hundred colleges in New England and the Middle Atlantic states, discussing academics, student life, admissions, and financial aid.

For the typical middle class and upper class American family looking to send their children to college is a very expensive, confusing, and time consuming process. The college's CFO or Chief Financial Officer (financial aid officer) and your high school guidance counselor are helpful, but only to a certain extent. You know you have a HUGE bill to pay for your child's college and you're scared to death because you don't know how you're going to pay it. And, the system seems to be stacked against you. In this book, How To Pay For Your Child's College Education Without Going Broke!, Charlie explains how you can put yourself in position to take advantage of the system and have it work for you. He teaches how to pay for college comfortably so that you don't have to use up your retirement accounts, mortgage your house to the hilt, or drastically change your lifestyle. If you have a high school Sophomore, Junior, or Senior who will attend college after high school then this book is for you.

Discusses financial aid options and cutting college costs.

Forget about the way most people earn their 4-year college degree. I personally earned my Bachelor's degree and graduated with only $11,000 in student loans. Are you planning on going to college but terrified about how you'll ever pay back your student loans? Do you know someone who is in a heap of student loan debt? Do you wish there were a way to get a college degree without being in debt well into your 40s and 50s? Well, guess what, there is another way. It is totally possible to graduate college with a 4-year degree and have a fraction of the debt most people have. I know this because I've done it. In this book, you'll learn the following: How to save a fortune on tuition Alternative methods of attending college How to get the job you want with a potentially less expensive degree Tips and tricks to saving extra money in college *How to form good spending habits that will help your financial success Think about how much better your life would be if you could have such a small student loan that it could be paid off in less than 5 years. Make a decision that will lead to your success, not one that will put you in life-long debt.

Ready or not high school graduation is here. And chances are if you are reading this, you have no idea what's next. Although you may not know what's next, one of the very few things in life we all know for sure is that you will end up somewhere. Before you know it you'll be on your own supporting yourself. Think about it, the day will come when you're responsible for paying your own rent or mortgage, buying your own food, covering your own phone, light and gas bill and of course paying for social activities, clothes and those other non-essentials like your trip to Maui or taking your girl out to eat. You're going to need a way to pay for it all, right? So why not choose a way that will allow you to support yourself while doing what you love, living the kind of life you want while you enjoy being at your intended somewhere? Graduation is the ending of one chapter of your life and the beginning of the next. What a great time to start thinking about your somewhere and whether or not you'll take an active role in determining where it will be. You will have a future and although no one can predict it, you can play an active part in creating it. So why not take advantage of all the world has to offer and start thinking about your somewhere while taking a part in getting there? The great thing about your somewhere is that it will not always be the same. Think about it. Your somewhere today is a recent or soon to be high school graduate. Your somewhere at 21 could be college graduate or working as an architect. Your somewhere at 25 could be working a job that you love (or hate) or being a single parent living on welfare. Once you are in your 30s, your somewhere might be celebrating your promotion, world renowned fashion designer, pro athlete in the NBA or running your own business. The good news is that there is not just one path to your somewhere. The most common path, which is attending a college or University, is a great one. But it isn't the only great one. People learn in different ways and no one has a better learning style than anyone else. There is no wrong or right way to learn
