Beginning with specific guidelines for assessing and measuring indoor air contaminants, this hands-on reference details engineering, maintenance and operational procedures which may be applied to correct problems associated with "sick building syndrome," and generally to assure the safety and quality of indoor air. Among the solutions examined are retrofitting of VAV systems with IAQ sensors, use of desiccants to remove air contaminants, and new ventilation efficiency techniques. Guidelines for optimizing operation and maintenance in terms of their impact on indoor air quality are also provided. The techniques presented are those which can provide for the quality of air in indoor environments while not sacrificing energy efficiency. While emphasizing practical IAQ solutions which can be readily implemented in new as well as in older buildings, the author has also included a number of state-of-the-art techniques and new methods for which testing has only recently been completed.

Clinical Skills for Healthcare Assistants is an accessible, easy to read guide, outlining the fundamental and core skills integral to clinical practice. Divided into three sections, the first looks at fundamental skills applicable to all staff, such as accountability, communication and record keeping. Section two explores core clinical skills for example respiratory care, pulse, blood glucose management, catheter care, and fluid balance. Section three outlines complex clinical skills that require more in-depth training and may be restricted to specialist areas of practice, such as medication, and intravenous cannulation. Each chapter follows the same easy to use structure, starting with the aims and objectives of the chapter, followed by the explanation of why the skill is performed, relevant anatomy and physiology, related aspects and terminology, how to perform the skill and common problems. Aimed primarily at healthcare assistants, this will also be a useful resource for newly qualified practitioners and students in health and social care.
