Excerpt from A Souvenir of the Conant Memorial Church: Its Inception, Construction, and Dedication; With Illustrations When this book was commenced I had no thought beyond making a small souvenir of the dedication of the Conant Memorial Church; but as I worked at the compilation, the history of the church in Dudley seemed as interesting to me as the record of my ancestors; and as building the church and trying to provide for the preach ing of the Gospel was practically a part of the town's business in the time of those early settlers, it is not easy to say much about them and have their work not well understood. I judged also that the historical sermon of Rev. Mr. Francis would be acceptable, even if seasoned slightly with the religious dogmas of that day, inasmuch as it gives a great deal of the early history of the locality in a very clear and concise manner. In the history of the first church, I have made copies from the old records of the town as the best form in which to preserve it. I have been unable to find any record of the action of the Church in reference to the building of the edifice destroyed in 1890, but suppose that it was built largely by a committee of the townviii preface. The Book of Donors for Strasbourg cathedral is an extraordinary medieval document dating from ca. 1320-1520, with 6,954 entries from artisan, merchant and aristocratic classes. These individuals listed gifts to the cathedral construction fund given in exchange for prayers for the donors' souls. The construction administrators (the Oeuvre Notre-Dame) also built a chapel dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary in the nave that housed the book and showcased prayers and masses for the building benefactors. Chapel, book and west front project formed a three part commemorative strategy that appealed to the faithful of the city and successfully competed against other religious establishments also offering memorial services. Charlotte A. Stanford's study is the first to comprehensively analyze the unpublished Book of Donors manuscript and show the types and patterns of gifts made to the cathedral. It also compares these gift entries with those in earlier obituary records kept by the cathedral canons, as well as other medieval obituary notices kept by parish churches and convents in Strasbourg. Analysis of the Book of Donors notes the increase of personal details and requests in fifteenth-century entries and discusses the different memorial opportunities available to the devout. This study draws a vivid picture of life in late medieval Strasbourg as seen through the lens of devotional and memorial practices, and will be of particular interest to scholars of art history, memory, and medieval urban life.

Excerpt from Centenary Souvenir: Commemorative of the Completion of a Century by the First Presbyterian Church of Dayton, Ohio; Containing an Account of the Proceedings and the Addresses Delivered During the Celebration, December 10, 11, and 12, 1899 The celebration of the centenary of the First Presbyterian Church was probably the most interesting event in the religious history of Dayton. The devotional and historical services were of a high order, and were enjoyed by enthusiastic audiences, who were inspired and instructed. The music throughout was of rare beauty, richness, and dignity; the selections manifested a true sympathy with the spirit of the occasion and were faultlessly rendered. The singing of old hymns that had often stirred the hearts and deepened the devotion of the fathers and mothers, was a feature that excited very favorable comment. A pilgrim spirituality for Holy Land travel, Jerusalem Bound resources the Christian traveler with biblical, historical, and contemporary images of the pilgrim life. Integrating historical sources, on-the-ground experience, and the voices of global pilgrims, Jerusalem Bound presents a fresh approach to pilgrimage, explores pilgrim identity and the Holy Land experience, offers ideas for Holy Land travel, and encourages pilgrims to focus upon the Other as much as themselves. Unique among Holy Land resources, Jerusalem Bound discusses material that is seldom addressed on a Holy Land journey: the motives of Holy Land pilgrims, the history of the Christian Holy Land, understanding the holy sites, pilgrim practices, material objects, and the challenges of Holy Land pilgrimage. Emphasizing the incarnational nature of lived experience, the book encourages pilgrims to derive meaning in both the highs and lows of religious travel. Attentive to the transformational nature of pilgrimage, Jerusalem Bound is ultimately interested in Christian formation and the aftermath of the Holy Land journey.

Excerpt from Hadley, the Regicides, Indian, and General History: A Souvenir in Honor of Major-General Joseph Hooker and in Anticipation of the Memorial Exercises at His Birthplace, Tuesday, May 7, 1895; Dedicated to the Third Corps, and to All the Heroes of the War Tradition proves that this has always been a favored spot in the eyes of the children of men who inhabited it. Indian trails from all points of the compass concentrated on the rude forts scattered along the foothills that formed the rim of the basin, and as a military necessity the pioneers of the white race chose the neck of a peninsula formed by a sweep of the river, in the midst of a verdant meadow, as one more resting place for weary feet while subduing a wilderness. At the present time the valley is becoming crowded with thriving towns, the electric gong and steam whistle are heard in the land, and there is much running to and fro in the interest of material things. But, as in the beginning, the wide street still spans the peninsula, the river still loops its silver ribbon around the grassy meadows, and the church spires pierce the blue out of the elm embowered foliage. Peaceful as a dream of childhood, ancient in dress of bygone days. Old Hadley holds a proud place as a mother and protector of famous names in the stirring drama of the world's history. Sleepy, quiet Hadley! How the sons and daughters love to come back from their wanderings and look upon thy face out of the shadow of the mountain. Excerpt from Dedication Souvenir of the Chambers-Wylie Memorial Presbyterian Church: Broad Street, Below Spruce, Philadelphia At that time the quiet of God's house was not allowed to be disturbed No vehicle of any kind could pass along the street, for a chain, from sidewalk to sidewalk, was stretched, and the marble pillar on the east side, to which the chain was attached, is there to this day. The Sabbath day was regarded by the young people as a field day. At six in the morning there was a prayer meeting; at nine, the Sabbath School; at ten - thirty, the forenoon church services at one, a rehearsal of sacred hymns; at two, another session of the Sabbath School; at three-thirty, the afternoon church services, and at seven - thirty, a prayer and conference meeting. This book innovatively explores the notion of koinonia for understanding the nature and function of the Church. Since the Scriptures assert that the Church is the Church of God, God's communal mode of existence is looked at namely, God who is a communion of three hypostases relating to one another in an interpenetrating koinonia of infinite love as a way of understanding the very being of the church as communion. Such a notion of koinonia, far from having anything to do with socio-political understandings, suggests that it is a foundational gift bestowed from above to the world as the solution par excellence to the impasse of isolationism. More often than not, however, such an ecclesiology of communion has not taken seriously the historical reality of the Church living within the fallen world along with its ceaseless temptations, divisions and even sins in history. In this way, it becomes apparent that a dialectic needs to be acknowledged in the notion of communion as both foundational gift from God, and yet one still to be fully realised. Accordingly, this work shows that the Church is not only as the gift of God's miraculous presence here on earth. The Church is also constantly striving to exist epicleitically until such time as it will fully experience the final consummation in Gods eschatological kingdom. An examination of this double dimensionality of the Church is undertaken in order to assess if this is in line with the Scriptural witness of the ekklesia. Having established the gift-goal dialectic in the notion of koinonia in the New Testament Church, the study then traces the trajectory of this dynamic approach to koinonia in the Church's worship and authoritative structures. This promises to cast both a deeper light on, and a more realistic solution to ecclesiological problems within the life of the Church today, allowing for the Church's constant renewal.

A fascinating study of how ordinary German subjects collected and consumed royal relics and memorabilia.

The Empire State Building, the Eiffel Tower, and the Tower of London may be among the best known of souvenir buildings, but these are only the beginning of an entire world of miniature monuments and souvenir buildings for the authors, whose personal collection numbers over 2,400 objects. For this book, they have selected nearly 1,000 buildings, which have been specially photographed in settings that are witty, amusing, and none-too-serious. 100 photos, 60 in color.

Once again, over 50,000 listings from reliable sources are included and carefully checked by an authority on the subject.
