From the slums of Garib Nagar in Bandra East to the red carpet of the Oscars nineyear-old Rubina s journey has been an astonishing one, almost as astonishing as Jamal s quiz showvictory in Slumdog Millionaire. This is her story-of playing marbles in the gulees of Garib Nagar with her friends, reluctantlygoing to school and dreaming of acting in films, and then having it come true. But underneath thisfairy tale lies a grimmer reality, the reality that faces countless number of slum children. Rubinabrings alive the world of the chawls with its wastelands and shanty dwellings, the lives of thechildren who grow up in them, the story of her rickshaw puller father, and the rest of her family.She tells us about life on the film set, the aftermath of the Oscars (including the controversy overher father), and how it feels to have the media spotlight on her. What does it mean for a little girl tomove from slum to star so quickly? What will the future hold for her?

How Global Youth Values Will Change Our Future reveals the values and religious beliefs of Generations Y and Z, representing over 4,000 young people from 88 countries. This book is based on their own voices, rather than adult projections from multiple-choice surveys. It also includes futurists' projections of significant trends to predict where society is headed. As the largest, best-educated, and most connected generation ever, today's youth are creating a more democratic world.

Ageism is prevalent in a great deal of current scholarship in the social sciences as scholars fault youth for being delinquent or politically apathetic. Researchers ignore young people's actual voices, despite their leadership in recent global uprisings, some of which unseated entrenched dictators. Neoliberalism must be exposed in its focus on youth sub-cultures and styles rather than economic barriers caused by growing inequality and rising youth unemployment rates. Ageism in Youth Studies also discusses the debate about "Generation

We or Me” and if Millennials are narcissistic. Resources about global youth studies are included, along with the results of the author’s surveys and interviews with over 4,000 young people from 88 countries.

My name is Rubina Ali. I don't know when my birthday is, and nor does my father, but I do know that I am nine years old. Young Rubina is a one-in-a-million star. Plucked from among five hundred slumkids who auditioned for Danny Boyle's multi-Oscar-winning film Slumdog Millionaire, she saw her fairy-tale dream of stardom come true. Now that she has stepped into the limelight, what will life hold for a young girl from the Mumbai slums? Rubina tells her own incredible story, bringing to life a world of wastelands and rat-infested shanty dwellings, where she played marbles with her friends beside the sewers of Garib Nagar. She introduces her beloved father, a hardworking rickshaw puller, and her siblings. And then Rubina tells of the kindness of Danny Boyle and of the time she spent on the film sets--including the hilarious incident when her costar came to be covered in chocolate from head to toe. After her brief encounter with red-carpet glamour, how will Rubina come to terms with the conditions in which she, her family, and her friends continue to live since Hollywood came knocking? This is her compelling story.
