Documents the stage management of Stephen Sondheim's "Sunday in the park with George" directed by Gregg Stuhl and performed at the University of Mary Washington during the month of November 2014.

A behind-the-scenes look at the making of the iconic musical Sunday in the Park with George Putting It Together chronicles the two-year odyssey of creating the iconic Broadway musical Sunday in the Park with George. In 1982, James Lapine, at the beginning of his career as a playwright and director, met Stephen Sondheim, nineteen years his senior and already a legendary Broadway composer and lyricist. Shortly thereafter, the two decided to write a musical inspired by Georges Seurat's nineteenth-century painting A Sunday Afternoon on the Island of La Grande Jatte. Through conversations between Lapine and Sondheim, as well as most of the production team, and with a treasure trove of personal photographs, sketches, script notes, and sheet music, the two Broadway icons lift the curtain on their beloved musical. Putting It Together is a deeply personal remembrance of their collaboration and friend - ship and the highs and lows of that journey, one that resulted in the beloved Pulitzer Prize-winning classic.

Sometimes you're in a hurry, but you want to get a little mental workout, too. Luckily, there's Sunday in the Park with Crosswords, which is bursting with lots of little 10 x 10 puzzles, just perfect for an on-the-go brain strain. Two notable crossword writers have contributed the puzzles for this one, so you know you're in for many sessions of head-slapping trivia and chuckle-inducing wordplay.

This thesis project will contribute to the pre-existing canon of musical theatre research but will also provide insight to non-musical actors who are researching similar archetypal characters. Musical theatre performers who are preparing for Stephen Sondheim shows can apply this research to help understand the role of this archetypal character in the context of each show.

The first in-depth look at the work and career of one of the most important figures in the history of musical theater.

This analysis serves to reveal the strong interconnectedness between museums and theatre (mentioned only briefly by other scholars) as uniquely demonstrated by Stephen Sondheim's musical, Sunday in the Park with George. Because Sondheim chose George Seurat's museum-housed painting, Sunday on the Island La Grande Jatte, as the foundation for his show, museum practices including labels, titles, ways of seeing, and curatorial authority--to which Seurat's painting has already been subjected--can also be located in Stephen Sondheim's musical. However, in the musical the artist is returned authority over his painting, above museum practice and curator bias. By granting the artist such dominion over the artwork, Sondheim redirects the focus from Seurat's innovative pointillist style (as commonly found in history books) to a focus on the relationship between artist and artwork, allowing for artist and painting to converse.
