He let us have a small in-between room with two beds that were made quite fast with sheets of plywood. They had a thin colorful mattress on top. An old and quite crooked wardrobe was placed at on one wall, while the other was a lacquered dressing table with a mirror. It turned out that we had a neighbor as well. A bank manager from Zurich, Switzerland. Our rooms were partitioned with a thick rug instead of a door, but who pays attention to these sorts of things in Tajikistan? He was in his late fifties with totally gray hair. His face and hands were severely sunburned; the sun being something that he had most obviously underestimated. He spoke English and was sincerely happy when he learned that we could communicate. He was traveling by bicycle. He had been planning this trip for a long time. He wanted to escape the stress in Zurich and to travel Pamir by bicycle. He had flown to Dushanbe, from where he departed 5 days ago realizing that the task at hand was beyond his strength. He had arrived a few hours before us. He had passed only 250 km and had another at least a 1000 more to go. He was feeling that he had reached the utmost of his abilities and had become quite distressed and down. "I can't quite grasp where I am, it's awful really, this broken down road, the dust, the trucks, the sand...and the heat is just killing me, I won't be able to, and I give up. Tomorrow I am going home," he was lamenting. "Wait a second," I tried to console him. "You can always give up and, when you go back, what? I am sure it's not any better at the bank. I am sure that's another hell altogether, did you forget?" "I don't know, I didn't expect it to be so hard," he was shaking his head. "I won't be able to." "Look now," I continued. "Rest a day or two. Gather your strength, it would be a real pity to give up at this point, you are almost half-way there!" "Half-way? I am nowhere, my climb hasn't even started yet - no, I won't be able to." He was stubbornly insisting. "Look what I am going to tell you now," I kept on convincing. "Come with us now, we'll have something to eat, to drink some of the magic potion of my colleague here, we'll talk and tomorrow, if you still feel like it, you can return. In any case you can't depart now. Each day that you survive here is a major achievement. It is a defeat that you will always remember when you sit down at your desk at the bank. Take it one day at a time. This way, you don't have to think how you will make it to the end, just focus on how you'll end the day. You see how easy it is?" "Yes, you are somewhat right, but..." he was being demure. "There are no buts my man, this is not you making estimations on the potential bankruptcy of the bank or some sort of a credit risk or whatever you call it. Here you decide, you either win or, you lose. Every day is a win, come, let's go eat, then we'll speak again." I concluded my lecture series. "You might be right," he said thoughtfully and we went out in the yard. The host brought us our dinner which was included in the price. It contained a soup, a large salad, home-made bread and watermelon. We filled our glasses with the elixir, chatted while the sun slowly descended behind the hills. The river was crashing loudly at the shore under us and one more fantastic day was coming to an end. We quickly emptied our glasses and our new friend became increasingly more pleased and content. A short while before we headed off to bed, he said thinking. "Yes, you convinced me, I will stay. I will rest a few days and I will continue. Thank you very much." "Right, I even sometimes manage to convince Mitaka, so convincing you is not even a challenge," I said in all seriousness. Let's go kill the mosquitoes, cause otherwise we won't be able to get any shut eye. And don't forget, each day is a conquest!" The same applied for us, each day was a defeat. Another battle won - our own personal battle. Lined Notebook Journal 106 pages 6"x9" Summer is finally here. Are you ready for your next adventure? FIVE full-length standalone light historical mysteries in one volume! Join Cordelia, Lady Cornbrook and her eclectic household as she fights crime, unearths secrets, and fends off the advances of unsuitable men. These Victorian murder mysteries are set in Britain in the 1840s, and take a light, frothy look at the fun side of history. It's not quite Dickens. Maybe Dickens at a party after a few too many brandies. They are rooted in accuracy, though (there are author's notes at the back and everything, which makes it legit). In An Unmourned Man, we meet Cordelia for the first time. She's widowed, titled, entitled, and plunged into an exciting adventure which features a country doctor wearing only his shirt and breeches. There's callisthenics, a surly coachman, a cad with copious facial hair, laudanum and society balls. Riots and Revelations takes us to the grim north, which is all mills and rain and working class uprisings. There's a dashing cavalry officer and a passionate rabble-rousing Chartist, trouble at t'mill, wayward servants, night-time escapades with weaponry, and a large pig. In The House of Secrets and Lies returns Cordelia to London, and to the heart of British politics, which is actually more interesting than it sounds. Cordelia vows to stop a miscarriage of justice. But she is too rich to go into the lowest parts of Victorian London, too female to go into the clubs and coffee houses, and too scandalous to go to the parties and balls. The fourth book, Daughters of Disguise, leaves England and takes Cordelia and her household to Wales. It's a different country, with its own language, its own traditions, and its own history of justice. Cordelia has joined forces with the local constable, and together they are up against not only the murderer, but the local council ... and even the local people. And finally, in The Continental Gentleman, she confronts her past. It's not pleasant, but luckily she's armed with a short, stabby sword. It's late summer and Cordelia is rattling around her Surrey estate, annoying the servants and causing the gardeners to hide in the bushes. Her old friend – or nemesis – Hugo Hawke turns up, and he's closely followed by his own past. It's good news ... at first. These novels contain innuendo but no graphic scenes or language, and may be considered clean and suitable for all readers.

It's Been One Hell of a Ride is a pretty sarcastic, totally true, and comical ride. A two-part book started as a journal of our family story to my Timm men. It's a book on how we began this ride. How we dealt with many life hiccups with humor. How we picked our battles and learned to breathe through the struggles. How we enjoyed the little things. Also, to remember the good times, remember the bad times, and to learn from it and move on. Keep trucking as this is your ride and ultimately up to you to make it the best ride it can be! In this creating process, it dawned on me that this book is not just for us but also for others. It's for all pondering their place on the path. It reassures all panickers this isn't going the way it was planned and that's okay. You just let the ride take you, learn to love it, and find the humor in it, as the grass really isn't greener over here or there. I'm sure many of you can relate that our rides have bumpy paths, but we always have the option to steer it in a different direction.

Choices Are For The Living is a spiritual journey every believer should take. It begins with one simple yet profound question...Do we fear the Lord? In other words, do we have a “reverential awe” of the Most High God? As Christians, a positive response comes easily, but our true answer is always reflected in our choices. This is not a legalistic or “works-based” theology. Instead, it’s an authentic, heartfelt, “crazy in love” faith response to Christ Himself. Led by the Spirit, Michele challenges us to ask some hard questions. Are we willing to uncompromisingly obey the Word of God at all costs? Will we follow the Holy Spirit no matter where He leads? Do our words say “Yes” while our choices scream “No”? This message is a wake-up call for the church. It’s time we choose commitment over complacency, action over apathy and passion over passivity. Allow the Spirit to use this anointed, inspired book to spark in you a reverent fear of Almighty God. Refuse to live a single day as a lukewarm Christian. Be willing to make choices with eternal significance...and be ready to turn your world upside down for Jesus! When recently divorced Rob Kozak's eight-year-old son Bobby moves from Canada to Australia with his mother, Rob's entire life changes. But although his son is literally on the other side of the world, Rob soon discovers that the vast distance between them is not insurmountable. Originally started as a journal to help him cope with the loss as well as record the joys of yearly visits with his son, Finding Fatherhood: Lessons Learned from Separation is the story of how Rob managed to maintain a loving, involved relationship with Bobby, even at such a great distance. It is also a delightful chronicle of their adventures together over six extended Australian holidays. During the months he was away from Bobby, a period referred to as the "desert times," Rob reflected on and wrote about what it takes to be a good man and a good father until he could be back in the oasis of Bobby's company. Part memoir, part Australian adventure and part portrait of a touching and unbreakable bond between father and son that couldn't be severed by geography, Finding Fatherhood will inspire, bring comfort and offer hope to parents who are separated from their children.

POP YOUR PARADIGM! is a wonderful, powerful story of triumph, but not of one person over another. No, this is a story of one woman's triumph over the most powerfully controlling thing ever—her subconscious programming, her paradigm—that voice inside her mind that had her convinced that she was weak and worthless and that she deserved to be abused. Are you unhappy with your life the way it is? Or are you satisfied (complacent) with your life, but you know you're capable of more? Is there something you've always wanted to do, but you never thought you could? Do you feel stuck? Are you living the same life day in and day out? The same year over and over? Do you feel as if the world is against you, or that you are not meant to be happy? Do you feel as if there's more "problem" in your life than "possibility?" If any of this (or anything along these lines) feels like it applies to you, and if you're looking for a way to shift or expand your life, then POP YOUR PARADIGM! can serve as a great example for you, not only of how it's done, but that it CAN be done! What you will find in POP YOUR PARADIGM! is proof that when you believe in "possibility," ANYTHING is possible!
